Profile

I am a film-maker (producer, director and Final Cut Pro editor), primarily within the documentary, factual entertainment, and music video genres. Having produced, directed and self-shot many productions, both single- and multiple-camera (sometimes with dollies and jibs), I know how to create distinctive, good-looking films with strong narratives. I have particular skill in working with archive film and photographs. My show reel is available at <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3EUuJhXL9jU>. I have also been involved in training not-for-profit organisations and young people in video production, and assisted broadcasters such as the BBC, and the Discovery Channel.

I always show initiative, and am highly organised, with excellent communication skills within the production team environment. I feel confident directing actors and presenters, and managing contributors – calmly, and with complete professionalism, even under extreme pressure. With an open and enquiring mind, and the skills to actually negotiate access to subjects, I strive to plan ahead in order to achieve the best possible material.

I have worked in the UK, mainland Europe (I speak conversational German and basic Spanish), the Middle East, and Africa. The countries that I have visited include France, Germany, Northern Ireland, Norway, South Africa, Spain, and the United Arab Emirates. Although based near Glasgow, I frequently travel to Edinburgh and London.

I have trained in first aid (on an HSE-approved course) and health & safety at work (including risk assessment), and project management. I have also been CRB disclosure checked and approved.
